About UniTech

Unitech is Egyptian hosting company. As a cloud transformation specialist and IT managed services provider, our diverse team of certified experts supports organizations of all sizes in the Middle East & Africa to combat modern-day IT business challenges.

The image is a composite of two photographs. On the left, a dark-themed screenshot of the UniTech Technology website is displayed. The website features the company's name in large white and blue letters ('UNITECH TECHNOLOGY'), a tagline 'The Best Solution For Cloud Services' in smaller white text, and a 'Learn More' button at the bottom. On the right, a photograph shows a man with glasses and a beard, wearing a brown long-sleeved shirt and dark trousers, kneeling in front of a server rack in a data center. He is holding a laptop and a smartphone, appearing to perform maintenance or monitoring. The background shows the interior of a server room with multiple racks of equipment.

Based on the analysis of our previous two campaigns, the 25-44 age range, particularly males, has demonstrated the most potential. This demographic not only had higher engagement but also better conversion rates at a reasonable cost, making it a key target for future efforts.

In contrast, the 45+ age group exhibited low engagement levels, with higher costs per result, indicating that this demographic may not be the most effective target for our current strategy.

Both campaigns primarily relied on messaging conversations to generate leads. However, Campaign 1's content appears to be better suited to our audience, as it had a clearer call-to-action (CTA), which resulted in a higher number of messaging contacts.

Audience Demographics

Based on our campaign analysis, the primary age group lies within the 25-44 range, with particularly strong engagement in the 35-44 segment. This demographic has shown higher interaction rates across various metrics, especially in post engagement and messaging contacts, signaling strong interest and conversion potential.

Geographically, Egypt stands out as the top-performing region, accounting for 55.3% of the overall reach. Meanwhile, other regions like Nepal and Algeria also show notable engagement, though they represent a smaller portion of the audience.

The click-through rate (CTR) of 2.4% suggests moderate effectiveness in encouraging interactions, with a total reach of 52.3%, highlighting the need for optimizing content to increase engagement. While the engagement rate is at 9.4%, there is room for growth, especially by focusing on the performing content, such as Facebook, which has proven to be the best platform for driving results.

Moving forward, targeting younger audiences, particularly in Egypt and similar regions, with tailored and optimized content is likely to drive stronger outcomes.

The LinkedIn organic reach report shows that out of a total audience of 163, the posts received 42 impressions, which means approximately 25.7% of the audience saw the posts. While this indicates some level of engagement, there is room for improvement. Strategies like optimizing content, increasing posting frequency, and utilizing relevant hashtags could potentially enhance visibility and overall reach in future campaigns.
